THE DEPUTY SECRETARY-GENERAL

FOREWORD

The global system is coming under unprecedented stress from interconnected and complex transformations in our human and physical geography. Environmental degradation, rapid urbanization, conflict, severe income inequalities and exclusion of vulnerable groups pose major challenges to human development and security.

Robust principles are needed to underpin the management of our future. The rule of law is a core principle of governance that ensures justice and fairness, values that are essential to humanity. It must guide our collective response to a fast changing world.

On 24 September 2012, the General Assembly will be holding a high-level meeting on the rule of law at the national and international levels, which is potentially a seminal moment on this issue. This will indeed be the first time that the rule of law is debated at such a high-level since the World Summit in 2005. It will also be the first high-level meeting of the General Assembly dedicated solely to this subject.

We have come a long way since Member States demanded at the World Summit a stronger focus on the rule of law. In my capacity as the Chair of the Rule of Law Coordination and Resource Group, which brings together the nine United Nations entities most actively engaged on the rule of law, I am pleased by our progress.

To support Member States in their efforts to strengthen the rule of law at the national and international levels, we have enhanced our capacities and are increasingly integrating our work through joint rule of law approaches in places such as Timor-Leste, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Haiti and South Sudan. We continue to support Member States, at their request, in the development and the implementation of international law. We seek to do so in an increasingly integrated and coherent manner to ensure support requested by Member States includes the provision of the necessary advice and capacity-building to comply with their international obligations.

Looking forward, the high-level event will be a unique opportunity for Member States to set themselves the agenda for progress and ensure that priorities and tools are put in place to guide the international community over the next five years.

Recognising that the body of international norms and standards developed under the auspices of the United Nations is one of the Organization's greatest achievements and contribution to the rule of law, I am very pleased that this year's Treaty Event will coincide with the high-level meeting on the rule of law. Indeed, international treaties are at the core of the rule of law. Therefore, in view of the high-level meeting, the Secretary-General encouraged Member States to ratify or accede to international treaties to which they are not yet party, and to review and remove any reservations to treaties to which they are party (A/66/749).

I strongly encourage States to use this Treaty Event to advance the universal application of the framework of internationally agreed upon norms and standards. Achieving universal participation would improve the predictability and consistency of responses to our global challenges and tangibly demonstrate States' commitment to address them collectively, in a spirit of international solidarity and on the basis of our shared humanity.

ASHA-ROSE MIGIRO

THE SECRETARY-GENERAL

9 MAY 2012

Excellency,

As the depositary of more than 550 multilateral treaties, I have the honour to refer to the annual treaty event of the United Nations. The Treaty Event will be held from 24 to 26 September and on 1 and 2 October 2012 in the Treaty Signing area in the General Assembly Building at United Nations Headquarters in New York.

In line with the decision of the General Assembly to convene, at its sixty-seventh session, a high-level meeting on the rule of law at the national and international levels, it is my pleasure to highlight the rule of law as the focus of the 2012 Treaty Event. The opening of the Treaty Event will coincide with the high-level meeting on 24 September 2012. The ensuing days of the annual treaty event will also coincide with the general debate of the sixty-seventh session of the General Assembly, which opens on Tuesday, 25 September 2012.

Treaties are a critical foundation for the rule of law. The Charter of the United Nations and other multilateral treaties developed under the auspices of the United Nations and deposited with me form a comprehensive legal framework of norms and standards regulating the conduct of nations, and also, indirectly, the conduct of people. They are one of the major successes of the United Nations since its founding.

The Treaty Event provides a distinct opportunity for States to reaffirm their continuing commitment to strengthen the rule of law at the international level. Since 2000, the annual event has proven to be an effective means for promoting wider participation of States in the multilateral treaty framework and thereby fostering the rule of law at the international level. Over the past eleven years, treaty events have attracted a total of 1,679 treaty actions (including signatures, ratifications and accessions).

Only two treaties have thus far achieved one hundred per cent participation among the community of nations. Others have a broad participation but fall short of the goal of universal participation. I therefore ask you to join efforts to advance the universal application of the framework of internationally agreed upon norms and standards. Universal participation and implementation of treaties is an ambitious and yet important goal which requires the combined efforts of all States to be realized.

REFERENCE:

21 MAY 2012

I wish to extend this invitation to you to make use of the 2012 Treaty Event by signing treaties and in particular by depositing instruments of ratification or accession to those treaties for which I act as the depositary thus contributing to the goal of universal participation. As indicated in the enclosed lists of treaties, only a few additional instruments of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession are required to reach the goal of universal participation with respect to several treaties deposited with me (see attachment A), and to trigger the entry into force of a number of treaties (see attachment B). A general list of the treaties deposited with me is available at the website of the Treaty Section of the Office of Legal Affairs (<http://treaties.un.org>).

If you would like to join me at the 2012 Treaty Event, kindly inform me by 6 September 2012 of your intention to sign, ratify or accede to any of the treaties of which I am the depositary, so that the necessary arrangements can be made.

Please accept, Excellency, the assurances of my highest consideration.

BAN KI-MOON

Excellency,

I have the honour to refer to the Secretary-General's letter of invitation addressed to Heads of State and Government to participate in this year's treaty event entitled "2012 Treaty Event: Strengthening the Rule of Law" which will be held from 24 to 26 September and on 1 to 2 October 2012 in the Treaty Signing area in the General Assembly Building at the United Nations Headquarters in New York during the general debate of the sixty-seventh session of the General Assembly.

States are encouraged to utilize the occasion of the 2012 Treaty Event to demonstrate their continuing commitment to the central role of the rule of law in international relations. It is emphasized that the Event may be used to sign and ratify or accede to any treaty for which the Secretary-General acts as depositary. You will be receiving a booklet with information on treaties which are close to attaining universal participation; treaties which have not yet entered into force; as well as treaties which remain open for signature; and the complete list of multilateral treaties deposited with the Secretary-General for your review and reference.

It is noted that, consistent with the rules of international law and the practice of the Secretary-General as depositary of multilateral treaties, a Head of State or Government or a Minister of Foreign Affairs does not require full powers to execute a treaty action in person. Furthermore, full powers are not required in cases where an instrument conferring general full powers has been issued to a designated person and has been deposited with the Secretary-General in advance.

However, where an action, such as a signature, relating to a treaty deposited with the Secretary-General is to be undertaken by a person other than the Head of State or Government or the Minister of Foreign Affairs, duly executed full powers are necessary.

* The attachments A and B are reproduced on pages 14 to 22

The Secretary-General's requirements for a valid instrument of full powers must include the following:

- Title of the treaty
- Full name and title of the person duly authorized to sign the treaty concerned
- Date and place of signature; and
- Signature of the Head of State, Head of Government or Foreign Minister.

Instruments of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession must also be issued and signed by one of the above three authorities, and should include all declarations and reservations related thereto. Full powers and instruments of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession should be submitted for verification to the Treaty Section well in advance of the intended date of the relevant treaty action. Further information on full powers and instruments of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession can be obtained from the Treaty Handbook. This document and other publications of the Treaty Section are available in the United Nations Treaty Collection at the website at <http://treaties.un.org>.

Advice before 6 September 2012 on your Government's intention to sign, ratify or accede to any of the multilateral treaties deposited with the Secretary-General would assist us in making the necessary arrangements, including appropriate media coverage. United Nations Treaty Collection website mentioned above provides updated information on the status of all treaties deposited with the Secretary-General. It is requested that appointments be made by contacting the Treaty Section of the Office of Legal Affairs (telephone: (+1-212) 963-5047; fax: (+1-212) 963-3693).

We look forward to your Government's participation in the 2012 Treaty Event.

Please accept, Excellency, the assurances of my highest consideration.

CLOSE TO ENTRY INTO FORCE

The following is a list of treaties which are close to entry into force.

Entry into force of a treaty is the moment in time when a treaty becomes legally binding on the parties to the treaty. The provisions of the treaty determine the date of its entry in force. This may be a date specified in the treaty, or a date on which a specified number of ratifications, approvals, acceptances or accessions have been deposited with the Depository.

A number of the treaties listed below require just one more instrument of ratification, acceptance, approval or accession in order to trigger entry into force, while others require just two or three instruments of consent to be bound in order to trigger entry into force.

OPEN FOR SIGNATURE

The following is a list of treaties which are currently open for signature.

Simple signature (signature subject to ratification) is permitted for most multilateral treaties for a specified period of time, though some multilateral treaties remain open for signature indefinitely. By signature, the State has not expressed its consent to be bound by the treaty, which does not occur until the State ratifies, accepts or approves the treaty. Signature does mean that a State is obliged, in good faith, to refrain from acts that would defeat the object and purpose of the treaty (articles 18 of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969).
